

HOW TO SELL & BUY ON MAKER DISTRICT SOCIAL

Selling and buying on Maker District Social is similar to selling and buying at a Farmer's Market or Craft Fair - just done virtually.

Sellers pay for a space to host their store and then list and sell their items directly to interested buyers. This works great for buyers who would like to inquire about custom items, too!

Buyers contact sellers directly about items they are interested in, or a custom item that they would like to discuss - and the transaction and shipping is handled directly by the seller.*

Seller and buyer choose which payment platform works best for them. (Venmo, ApplePay, GooglePay, PayPal, etc.) No middle man and Maker District collects no commissions on sale price or shipping cost and no extra fees or hidden fees.

Sellers know just how much they are making from a sale and buyers can rest easy knowing that the money they are spending is actually going to support small businesses.

*Transaction disputes and refunds are handled solely by the seller and buyer. Maker District is NOT responsible for, will not mediate for, and will not be liable for any transactions arranged on the Maker District Social platform.

Please review and make sure you are familiar with our policies and terms of use.